

Biography

LINDSAY DEUTSCH, violin

Hailed by the L.A. Times as having "... the technical equipment and temperament for a big career...", American violinist, Lindsay Deutsch, brings a fresh perspective to classical performances. Taking the listening experience to the next level, she plays with a passion and energy that has thrilled audiences throughout the US and Canada. At 25, critics find that she demonstrates "...fine maturity even during the most physical and demanding passages" (San Francisco Classical Voice), and "...has a stage presence and style far beyond her years and a charisma that enthralled her audience." (LCF Outlook – La Canada, CA).

Ms. Deutsch is currently the Principal Guest Artist for Orchestra Nova. Upcoming and recent performances include the Dame Myra Hess Concert Series, Orchestra Nova, the Cape Cod, Las Cruces, Colorado, Newport, New West, South Carolina, Brevard, West Virginia, Norwalk, Knoxville, Fort Worth Symphonies, as well as the Portland, Boulder, Mission, McGill, and Los Angeles Chamber Orchestras. Her newly commissioned "Rhapsody in Blue" for violin and orchestra was recently premiered with the National Academy Orchestra in Toronto.

Lindsay Deutsch made her Walt Disney Concert Hall debut performing John Corigliano's Red Violin Chaconne with the California Philharmonic. She made her solo orchestral debut at the age of 11 with the Clear Lake Symphony in Texas. As a recitalist, Deutsch has appeared on the prestigious Dame Myra Hess Memorial Concert Series in Chicago, Los Angeles Da Camera Society at the historic Doheny Mansion, at L.A.'s Gindi Auditorium, as guest artist at the PepsiCo Recital Hall at Texas Christian University, and several solo performances for the Leonard Nimoy Concert Series. In addition, she performed a recital at the Colorado Symphony Spring Ball with Jeffrey Kahane. Ms. Deutsch has also appeared at Boston's Jordan Hall, Houston's Wortham Theatre, Theatre Aquarius in Toronto, Canada and the Hollywood Bowl in Los Angeles where she performed excerpts of Mark O'Connor's "Strings and Threads" with the composer and the Disney Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra. She was honored by being invited to perform the theme from "Schindler's List" for John Williams at a gala dinner in his honor. As chamber musician, Ms. Deutsch has appeared at the La Jolla Summerfest and the Green Music Festival collaborating with artists Gil Shaham, Jeffrey Kahane, Adele Anthony, Cho-Liang Lin, Sheryl Staples, Arnold Steinhardt, Chee-Yun, Nokuthula Ngwenyama, Alisa Weilerstein, Gary Hoffman and the St. Lawrence String Quartet.

Biography

Lindsay Deutsch was a featured artist in the January 2010 issue of Symphony Magazine for her outreach work across the country. Lindsay Deutsch feels strongly that the young people of today need to be exposed to the world of classical music. She is actively involved in outreach programs to present classical music in new and exciting ways that will thrill and inspire the young audiences of today. She has a page on her website specifically aimed at young musicians and their parents which attracts 70,000 hits per month. She has garnered corporate support for this site which encourages young musicians and selects a "Student Musician of the Month" which highlights and recognizes outstanding musicians from all over the U.S. and Canada. In 2007, she and her sister, Lauren, co-founded a non-profit organization, Classics Alive (www.ClassicsAlive.org), dedicated to building classical music audiences.

In addition to her music, Lindsay Deutsch was a formidable racquetball player. She won the gold medal in the World Junior Olympic Racquetball Championships in 1997 and was selected to the 2000 U.S. Junior Olympic Team. Lindsay Deutsch plays a 1742 Sanctus Seraphin on generous loan from the Mandell Collection of Southern California.
